"MA" FERGUSON DEFIES LEGISLATORS

WOMAN GOVERNOR IS IN BAD REFUSES TO CALL SESSION

Declares They Want to Tear Me Apart--Texas Speaker of the House Says That the Legislature Will Convene January 4 to Take Up Impeachment Proceedings--Lone Star State Politics All Torn Over the Situation.

The lower house of the Texas legislature will be called to meet in special session January 4, Speaker Lee Satterwhite of that body said.

Announcement that the legislators would take the initiative for the session which will investigate acts of state officials with possible impeachment proceedings in view, followed a declaration of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson that she would not "throw myself to the wolves who want to gather in Texas and tear me apart."

The proclamation has been drawn and will be given official publicity December 16, Satterwhite said.

"The law requires that the house shall convene within 20 days after official proclamation has been issued."

"I am not calling the whole legislature in special session, but the house, to take up such matters as appear necessary to be dealt with at this time."

James E. Ferguson, the governor's husband, again denied that he had admitted being the "real governor."

The resignation of Amon G. Carter, millionaire oil man accused by the governor in connection with her liquor edict, from the directorate of the West Texas Technological college, was requested.

The Anti-Saloon League at Dallas declared it would ask for some of the $500 rewards offered by the governor for wealthy liquor law offenders.

Official acts of the Ferguson administration, particularly the awarding of road contracts, would be investigated if the special session of the legislature is convened. Should the legislators meet on their own call they could only consider impeachment proceedings against state officials.

"Let them assemble if they want to," she quoted as having declared. "Let them start something. I'll still be here when they finish." She said she was a fighter.

Ferguson denied, according to the story, a report that he made a "tacit" admission that he performed the duties of the governor. He said he never made any such admission, tacit or otherwise.

"Now please make that clear," he said. "Every newspaper in this state is against the Fergusons. That's their privilege. Now, you boys come from all corners of the country. We're asking for no favors. Just a square deal."

"There goes that 'we' again," interposed Mrs. Ferguson. "You want to watch out, Jim."

"That's where they got me wrong again," he said. "I've been saying that for years where 'Ma' and I are concerned. I just can't help it."

The Texas Anti-Saloon League challenged Governor Ferguson to "make good on her offer of a reward of $500 for the conviction of every liquor law violator worth more than $5,000."

Thru Rev. Atticus Webb, superintendent, the league offered "to take down the reward as fast as the governor can put it up until her funds are exhausted."

Webb said "if Mrs. Ferguson knows of a big newspaper publisher, or a prominent ex-official, or a millionaire, or a district judge, who are violating the law she should put their cases up to Attorney General Dan Moody."

CONFESSION BELIEVED TO BE SPURIOUS

Robert August Claims That He Killed Two Victims and Buried Them.

Toledo, O., Nov. 30, (UP).—Despite his confession that he "killed two victims and buried them," Robert August religious fanatic and recluse arrested in connection with the activities of the Toledo club welder, had nothing to do with the clubber's crimes, police said they believed.

August who was captured in a culvert near Holland, Ohio, and was carrying a blood stained hammer at the time, will probably be released or committed to some institution, officials said. Meanwhile, two other suspects have been taken into custody and were taken before the sanity commission.

Miss Wilma Hoadley, one of the clubber's victims, viewed August and the suspects failed to identify any of them as the "monster of the night."

August has the mind of a boy, according to alienists who examined him. Other victims admitted that "something about August was familiar" but in no instance was identification positive or a nature sufficient to warrant serious charges.

August has been living the life of a recluse in a woodland near Holland, according to the authorities.

TWENTY COWS AND ONE PONY IN HOLOCAUST

Sacrificed to Moloch, Early Morning Fire--Renick Dunlaps Farm, Loss $8,000.

The large stock barn of Renick Dunlap, located in Pickaway township, burned to the ground early Tuesday morning.

The structure was one of the largest in the county. Nearly everything in the barn consisting of twenty head of dairy cows, one pony and all the farm tools and implements and nearly fifty tons of hay and straw and seed corn was destroyed by the fire.

The farm is occupied by John Chester, a tenant, who had a half interest in the stock and farm implements.

The fire department of this city was called on for assistance at 1:35 o'clock Tuesday morning, but owing to lack of water on the farm little assistance could be given and it was useless for the department to respond.

The barn was 100 by 60 feet and the loss is estimated at $8,000.

Why Does a Second Wife Have Luxuries and Privileges That a Man's First Love Was Denied?

How often it happens that the first wife spends her entire married life in helping a man to get on in the world and then another woman gets the fruits of her life's work.

And isn't it strange that a man will do for his second wife a lot of things which his first wife wanted and could not get?

His better appearance in the world has given him a more prosperous appearance, and Mrs. Second Wife does not understand that it was a struggle to get the position he seems to have attained.

Naturally, she expects everything to correspond with surroundings.

It all looks easy to her, but the man must keep his nose to the grindstone and he deserves what he gets.

If Mr. Wedded Widower had appreciated his first companion and shown it by his words and acts, he might yet be the real head of his household and in comfortable circumstances.

As it is, he sports a new car, joins expensive clubs and kicks himself when the bills come in.—Copyright, 1925.

KEEP YORKTON LIBERTY SHRINE

Historians Plan Golf Course and Memorials on Washington's Battlefield.

Washington.—To restore and preserve the battlefield of Yorktown, where Cornwallis surrendered to Washington, as an international shrine of liberty is the purpose of a movement directed by three Yorktown organizations, the Historical society, the Forum and the Country club.

The movement has received the support of notables, including President Coolidge and his royal highness the duke of York, the latter having accepted the honorary presidency of the Yorktown forum. Included in the list are cabinet members, senators, representatives, Vice President Dawes, General Pershing and other high military officials, governors, ambassadors and other diplomats, Stanley Baldwin, the prime minister of England; Field Marshal Haig, Sir Auckland Geddes, Sir Esme Howard, Lady Nancy Astor, Lord Blyth of Vimy, the marshals of France and the descendants of Lafayette, Rochambeau and DeGrasse, who served at Yorktown with Washington.

Yorktown possesses a vital interest to Americans. General Pershing, in a foreword to a book, "The Glory of Yorktown," which is being circulated by the promoters, says that the fundamental proposition of the sovereignty of the people was made secure by the American revolution, and the struggle for national freedom, won at Yorktown, inaugurated a universal movement for national independence which spread over the western hemisphere and resulted in the establishment of twenty independent states in Latin America.

"This epochal movement," says General Pershing, "later spread to Europe and even to Asia, terminating the age-long struggle between democracy and autocracy, and bringing a new concept of popular government to the old nations of the world. Yorktown was one of the decisive battles of the world, and marked a turning in human history, the effects of which have become worldwide."

Dates Back Three Centuries.
Yorktown was patented in 1621 and the town of York was laid out in 1691. It is situated in the historic peninsula of Virginia. Near by is Jamestown where the first English settlement of the western hemisphere was made, in 1607, and not far distant is the site of the famous Indian village of Powhatan. Close at hand, too, is Williamsburg, seat of William and Mary college, which was founded in 1693, and but a few miles away are Fortress Monroe, guarding the entrance to Chesapeake bay, and Newport News, Hampton and Norfolk. Within a short radius are the birthplaces of seven presidents of the United States—Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Harrison, Tyler and Wilson.

Every school child knows of the important place Yorktown and its siege occupy in the history of the Revolutionary war, but not all know the spot that marked events in three other wars. There was important military action there during the war of 1812, when the British captured Yorktown on their way to Washington; during the Civil war the Confederates under General Magruder and General Johnson occupied the old Cornwallis fortifications when the Union under McClellan marched up the peninsula to attack them, and during the recent World War Yorktown was an American naval base.

The Yorktown Historical society has established headquarters in Yorktown to receive visitors, distribute explanatory literature and deliver lectures on the battlefield and the historic facts.

World Assembly Proposed.

It is planned to expand the Yorktown forum into a world assembly and international center comparable with The Hague, Brussels and Geneva. A classical temple is to be erected to house the forum and there will be closely connected units interpreting in symbol historical eras and epochs in the development of democracy. A perpetual endowment is to be provided.

The forum is affiliated with the Marshall-Wythe-Monroe school of government, citizenship and international relations of the College of William and Mary, and until the forum buildings are completed its sessions will be held either in the customs house at Yorktown, the oldest customs house in the United States, or in the National Memorial auditorium on the college campus.

The function of the Country club is to maintain the battlefield of Yorktown and to provide housing accommodations and recreational facilities for visitors. A temporary clubhouse has been erected and an 18-hole golf course completed. In constructing the golf course, the underbrush that concealed the redoubts, entrenchments and parallels of the famous battlefield has been cleared away and it is possible for visitors to inspect them for the first time since shortly after the Revolutionary period.

History of the Battle.

Yorktown, for all its military importance, by the way, was not a bloody battle ground, the allied American and French losses being only about 300 killed, wounded and missing, and the British losses about 550. Washington, when he took over the command from Lafayette, had a force far superior to that of Lord Cornwallis. He had approximately 9,000 Americans; there were 7,000 French under Rochambeau, and in addition, there was the French fleet of Count de Grasse, numbering 28 ships of the line with nearly 4,000 infantry on board. The siege was opened on October 9 and eight days later Cornwallis proposed to surrender.

October 19 Major General O'Hara led out the whole British army from the trenches into the open field, where, in the presence of allied ranks of France and America, 7,247 English and Hessian soldiers laid down their arms, delivered their standards and became prisoners of war.

The second siege of Yorktown, during the Civil war, likewise found McClellan in command of the Union army with a greatly superior force numbering 112,392 men as compared with not to exceed 50,000 Confederates. McClellan delayed his assault, however, and the Confederates evacuated Yorktown and fell back to Williamsburg on the way to Richmond.

3 Lines Tell of Heroic Rescue of 22 at Sea

New Orleans.—Capt. Robert Laird of the Honduran steamship Atlantida, is a man of few words.

In logging the rescue of a crew from an American vessel in distress, Captain Laird noted the incident thus:

"Much lightning, 8 a. m. Sighted Timpson in distress, 2 p. m. Rescued. Crude oil to quiet waves."

Captain Laird sailed from his New Orleans home wearing a watch bearing the inscription: "From the President of the United States to Robert Laird, master of the Honduran steamship, Atlantida, in recognition of his humane service in effecting the rescue at sea on October 18, 1924, of the master and crew of the American motorship, James Timpson."

John R. Kennedy, second officer and Lionel Buckley, wireless operator, were presented with binoculars, and medals will be presented to three members of the crew who manned the small boat, with Kennedy and Buckley, in which 22 members of the crew of the Timpson were transported through hurricane seas from their crippled ship to the Atlantida.

BUSINESS EQUILIBRIUM

Charles E. Mitchell, president of the biggest bank in America, evidently feels like making the same prayer for American business.

He rejoices in the fact that business is now enjoying sound prosperity, with neither boom nor slump threatened. He cannot find any sign of dangerous inflation. Business and credit conditions, he says, are both sound.

"This is the time, however, for everyone to watch his inventory lest it become too large and disturb the present perfect equilibrium of business."

That is worth quoting if only for its neat phrase, "perfect equilibrium of business," which is the ideal of the level-headed business man.

"We do not want business to reach the boom state," says Mr. Mitchell. "That sort of business is always short-lived. What we want is to try to keep business and credit on a conservative basis, with demand just a little ahead of production."

This is the existing situation, and also the prospect for the immediate future. It ought to be enough to satisfy any rational person.

Horse Saved Mate's Life

Comote, a three-year-old thoroughbred mare on the Bakersfield (Cal.) ranch, is credited with saving the life of her mate, Katie. Comote pranced into the ranch yard visibly excited. By various means the mare induced a man to follow her to a deep stream where Katie was struggling desperately to keep her head above the swirling water. A stake rope held her captive. The rescue was effected just in time to save her life.

AUTO VICTIM DIES

Lancaster, Nov. 29.—Harry Kelley, 54, of 48 Meek Ave., Columbus, brickmason, died Saturday at the Lancaster hospital where he was taken Thursday after an accident on the Lancaster-Logan road. Kelley's skull was crushed when the car in which he was riding turned over while an attempt was being made to pass another auto and a farm wagon. He was enroute to the home of relatives living near Enterprise where he was to partake of a family Thanksgiving dinner. Surviving are the widow, three sons, Harold, Charles and John, all of Columbus, and one daughter also of that city.

The younger set home from school for the Thanksgiving recess made merry Friday evening at the Phi Sigma Chi dance given at the Winter Garden. Eighty-five couples were present and enjoyed the wonderful music by Ken Middaugh's Castle Farm Orchestra of ten pieces.

During the evening a large turkey was given away and the winner was Miss Marion McVicker.

It was with real regret that the dancers heard the strains of "Home, Sweet Home" at one o'clock, the signal that the dance was over.

A number of out of town guests attended the affair including many from Circleville, Wellsston, Jackson and Washington C. H.—Chillicothe News-Advertiser.

The motorist who tries to beat the train to a crossing may not have much wit, and yet he is likely to become a man of parts.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

Airy Attic Room Is Fine to Cure CornPlan of Stringing Ears Is Familiar to Many.

With the recent frost catching much of the corn full of moisture, the method of curing seed corn this fall will determine to a large extent the success or failure of the stand next year.

"Seed corn," declares A. N. Hume, of South Dakota State college, "should be stored in a dry place with good air circulation, neither too hot nor too cold. An airy attic room will serve to store enough for home use, although it has the objection that it may bring mice into the house. The seed ears may be covered with dry threshed oats in a bin and allowed to remain there until spring.

"Most corn growers are familiar with the plan of stringing the ears and hanging them outdoors on the sunny side of a building or tying two or more ears together by the husks and hanging them that way. Such methods of curing are usually successful, unless the sunshine becomes too hot and causes germination of the corn. The strings of seed ears may be suspended from the rafters of a crib or even a garage, but do not drain the radiator of the car or allow steam to escape below the corn in freezing weather. Many bushels of good seed corn have been ruined in this manner.

"If corn is once well cured, it will be almost certain to retain its germination. Sometime after Christmas when it is thoroughly cured, it may be shelled, graded, and stored in sacks ready for planting."

Mature ears make the best seed corn although corn that has reached the glazed stage can be used if properly cured and stored. Seed for next year should be secured this fall.

Hogging Off Corn Saves Farmer Time and Labor

Farmers who hogged off a portion of their corn crop and husked the remainder on the stalk, made more money on corn in the past five years than those who cut, shucked, and husked it all, according to the experiences on Ohio farms where records were kept.

The figures for this survey were recorded by the farmers themselves, and F. L. Morison, of Ohio State University, who compiled the figures, says that by proper planning these men who let the hogs do part of the work greatly reduced labor costs.

"Based on the figures secured in Greene county from 1920 to 1925," writes Mr. Morison, "a farmer who has 40 acres of corn will spend 143 days of man labor in raising and harvesting his corn crop if he cuts, shocks and husks it. If five acres are hogged off the 40-acre corn crop will take 131 days of man labor. Hogging off not only saves labor in harvesting the corn, but also saves time in caring for the hogs.

"If this farmer with 40 acres of corn hogs off 30 acres and husks the remainder off the stalk, it will require only 78 days of man labor to raise and harvest his corn crop, or 65 days less than if he were to cut, shock and husk it all. At the high wages paid for this extra harvesting labor, the saving in man labor would amount to more than twice the value of the stover left standing in the field."

Green Feed Helps Hens

During the late fall and early spring the addition of green food to the rations of the hens will well repay the efforts of the poultry keeper. This can be supplied in many ways. Green cut alfalfa, corn fodder, lawn clippings or clover are excellent green foods. If these are not available, roots, such as mangels or turnips, are very acceptable. Many good poultry keepers feed both. This, of course, is in addition to the regular grain rations. By using a little thought during the growing season enough of this material can be cured for winter consumption.

Culling Is Profitable

That it does not pay to keep poultry—has been demonstrated to at least one West Virginia poultry raiser and his neighbors. Last fall he followed the advice of the poultry extension specialists and culled his flock. From a flock of 81 hens he culled out 39 and sent them to the market. To his surprise, the remaining 42 birds produced as many eggs as the original flock and his feed bill, consequently, was nearly halved.

FARM NOTES

Some cows live on profits.

Deep cultivation of cabbage cuts too many roots.

Noxious weeds, like diseases, should be eradicated.

Where soil fertility is a problem the absence of a legume in the rotation hastens the date of the sheriff's sale.

An egg is only a dividend declared after the body needs have been supplied, and nature looks out for Number One first—to get lots of eggs, cull out the drones and feed to the limit those that deserve it.

Women's Rights in Siberia

After 18 years of obedient married life with a well-to-do peasant of Cherkovskoy Nikovo, Mrs. Doria Kuboreva, absorbed the Soviet doctrine of woman's rights and began taking part in village politics. Her husband's beatings failed to discourage her and she was elected a member of the village Soviet. When she warned her husband that he must pay his taxes, he stabbed her with a knife. "The proletariat court will punish with great severity," adds the Siberian correspondent, who reported the incident. Kuboreva cannot be given more than ten years' imprisonment, as a single murder without robbery is not a capital crime in Russia.

Too Much Talk

Charles M. Schwab, at a banquet in Loreto, was cornered by a young man of great loquacity. This young man evidently believed that his chance in life was now come, and he talked away at Mr. Schwab for more than half an hour. At last he said meaningly:

"You are a good judge of character, Mr. Schwab. What quality do I most need in order to succeed?"

"Well, young man," the steel magnate answered, "I've listened to you for some time now, and it seems to me that you need—what is on that door over there."

"Ha, ha, ha! Push, eh? Pull, eh? Ha, ha, ha! Very clever! Push and pull? Is that what you think I need, Mr. Schwab?"

"No," said Mr. Schwab; "I think you need a device to make you shut up."

Good Home Brew

In these days of prohibition it is always nice to have a recipe on hand for making a home drink with a kick. One of our Peoria (Ill.) readers sent us a recipe for a home brew which, although it has a strong kick, comes within the law. The recipe is as follows: Chase a frog three miles and gather up its hops, to the hops add ten gallons of tan bark, half a gallon of shellac and a large bucket of soft homemade soap. Boil this mixture 40 hours, then strain through an I. W. W. proclamation to keep it working. Finally, bottle in pint bottles and add a grasshopper to each pint to give it a kick.—Pathfinder Magazine.

AMUSEMENTS

Marion Davies' latest Cosmopolitan production, "Yolanda," had its first showing at the Metropolitan theater and it stands out as one of the finest most artistic productions of the entire year. It is beautiful in its settings, skillful in its direction and excellent in the acting.

The entire production is full of the glamour of fifteenth century France. The sets devised by Joseph Urban are marvels of beauty and are historically accurate. The story was adapted by Luther Reed from Charles Major's novel, "Yolanda," and was directed by Robert G. Vignola, who directed Miss Davies' first big smashing film hit, "When Knighthood Was in Flower."

"Yolanda" gives Miss Davies a latitude of characterization even greater than that which she had in "Little Old New York." In both pictures she is called upon to delineate two characters that are quite different. In "Yolanda" Miss Davies appears as Princess Mary of Burgundy and as Yolanda, a burgher maid. She gives a finished performance in both characterizations, proving anew that she is one of the ablest and most charming of our screen actresses.

The cast is a notable one, both in the names of its players and in the excellence of their acting. Holbrook Blinn presents a fascinating portrait of the wily King Louis XI of France, a sinister figure on the verge of insanity. Lyn Harding, whose vigorous and sure handling of the part of Charles and Bold, duke of Burgundy, attests his mastery of screen technique, gives an even more commanding interpretation than he did in "When Knighthood Was in Flower." Other important roles are played by Ralph Graves, as handsome and resourceful Prince Maximilian of Styria, whose love affair with Yolanda gives romantic interest to the story, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Ian Mavlar, Johnny Dooley, Leon Errol, Maclyn Arbuckle, Theresa, Maxwell Conover, Mary Kennedy, Thomas Findlay and others.

Vast Supply of Potash

A thousand years' supply of potash for the American farmer, making us independent of supplies from Chile and other foreign countries, is possible as a result of a discovery of a new process for making potassium sulphate from greensand. Large quantities of this peculiar type of sandstone are found in Delaware, New Jersey, and Maryland near the surface so that it can be worked with steam shovels.—Popular Science Monthly.

OLD ENGLISH LAW BASED ON BIBLE

"Benefit of clergy" was a privilege once enjoyed by the clergy of England, whereby they were exempted from civil punishment. The origin of this exemption is unknown, but the custom was probably based on the text: "Teach not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm." (1 Chron. 16:22; Ps. 105:15) Edward I in 1274 extended this privilege to all laymen that could read. Such a criminal could not be put to death, but was to be branded on the left hand. The first verse of Psalm 50, was chosen as the reading test, and hence was known as the "neck verse." In 1601, this privilege was extended to women. The privilege eventually became a dead letter; it was variously restricted and finally in 1827 in the reign of George IV, it was abolished altogether.—Kansas City Star.

Hunter's Odd Bedfellow

Henry D. Ross, on a camping trip with his son in the woods north of Clifton, Ariz., had a bear for a bed-fellow one night, and this after failure to find bears in several days of hunting. He sleepily resented the invasion of his blankets and pushed the intruder away. His explanation of the affair is that it was only a poor little cub, seeking companionship and warmth, and that he is too much of a sportsman to shoot a cub.

Horse's Remarkable Feat

During a recent running race in Australia, Roschen, a famous turf horse, easily carried a rider weighing 210 pounds and won his race, much to the astonishment of race track followers. It is the first time this animal had ever won a race carrying more than 147 pounds of rider. The race was for five furlongs and the weight was considered staggering by most horsemen.

SPOILED EFFECT OF DOCTOR'S SMART IDEA

Frank Irving Fletcher, the advertising expert, said in an address in New York:

"Advertise, but advertise in the right way.

"At an important political meeting the other night the chairman had just introduced a famous orator, and the orator had just got up full steam, when an attendant tiptoed from the wings and whispered something in his ear.

"Friends, excuse me," said the orator, "but is Doctor Pillsbury in the house?"

"A pompous-looking man in a front seat rose.

"Doctor Pillsbury, you're wanted on the telephone."

"In a deep and impressive silence the doctor pushed past a dozen pairs of legs, and then as he went tiptoeing down the aisle the orator said from the stage:

"I have a doctor brother, friends, and he, too, used to advertise in this way when he was starting out."

Uncle Sam Breeds Bugs

In a strange nursery on the banks of the Potomac the United States government keeps a host of fleas, mosquitoes, mites and flies. When fully grown, they serve to test poisons that are sold throughout the country for extermination of insects, says Popular Science Monthly. Among the most valued assistants on the bug farm are four dogs, two cats and 125 chickens, which produce bumper crops of fleas and mites for the tests.

Outdoor Storage Cellars Favored

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Outdoor cellars may be used to advantage for the storage of surplus vegetable crops that otherwise might be lost, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. Such cellars are on the whole superior to storage rooms in basements of dwellings. Vegetables can more conveniently be placed in such cellars than in basement storage rooms. By opening the door during the night and closing it in the morning before the air becomes warm, it is possible to keep the cellar cool and quickly reduce the temperature of the stored products to the desired point for safe storage. All ventilators should likewise be kept tightly closed until the outside air is again cooler than that within the cellar, unless the outside temperature is low enough to be dangerous.

Best Location.

If the outdoor storage cellar is to be used principally for storing crops such as turnips, beets, and carrots for feeding livestock, it should be located near the stable. When it is designed for keeping vegetables for the table, the storage cellar should be accessible from the kitchen at all times. If both fruit and vegetables are to be stored, there should be two compartments to the cellar, with a ventilating apparatus in each.

The type of the outdoor storage cellar varies with geographical location. Except in sections where the climate is very mild, the storage cellar should be constructed so that it can be kept free from undue moisture and frost. In northern sections outdoor storage cellars are made almost entirely below ground and covered with a foot or two of earth. In winter the dirt covering may be supplemented by a layer of manure, straw, corn fodder or similar material.

A storage house adapted to conditions in southern sections of the United States may be constructed on a well-drained site by setting a row of posts five or six feet apart, extending seven or eight feet above the surface of the ground, with a ridgepole placed on top of them. Against each side of the ridgepole a row of planks or puncheons is placed, with their opposite ends resting in a shallow trench four or five feet from the line of posts. The ends are boarded up, a door being provided in one end of the structure, and the roof covered with sod to a depth of five or six inches. The floors of outdoor storage houses are usually dirt.

Storage House in North.

An above-ground type of storage house used in many sections of the North is a frame structure with walls ten to twelve inches thick filled with insulating material, such as sawdust or hayings. Both inside and outside walls are sheathed with matched lumber so as to make them air tight. The rafters are ceiled on the underside with the same material and the space between them filled with dry insulating substance. The use of building paper in the roof and walls of the storage house is of great value in insulating the structure. An air duct or pipe of sufficient size should be used to bring air from the outside. This duct should be placed just beneath the level of the floor, running from a point just outside the building to an inlet in the floor. The outside end of the duct should be covered with woven wire to prevent the entrance of small animals. A ventilating flue in the roof is necessary for the escape of warm air. Both ventilator and air inlet should be closed during very cold weather. If the storage room is longer than 12 feet, an additional ventilator will be needed. Unless the vegetables are placed in receptacles and set on shelves on the walls of the storage house, a slat floor on which to put the stored products should be used to provide a better circulation of air.

Extra Feeding AssistsYoung Growing Animals

It is always advisable to feed young lambs or any kind of young stock—pigs, calves or chickens—extra. If you would build a lamb run, that is, make a pen large enough to accommodate the lambs so that they could get in and out and sheep could not, you could feed the lambs extra in this run. Feed them ground oats and corn meal, and ensilage also; in fact, anything they care to eat. It might be well to let them eat ensilage with old sheep, also hay, but grain should be fed alone so the old sheep could not get to it. It is possible by this extra feeding and care to make a big growth on lambs. A farmer could get them to market much earlier. Extra feeding put into young growing animals is never wasted if fed with care.

Nurse Crop for Clover

Tests at the Brandon experimental farm emphasize the fact that sweet clover is much more economically produced when sown with a nurse crop than when sown alone. The yields of the various nurse crops are in no way due to the presence of the sweet clover and the slightly increased yield the following season in favor of seedling alone is insignificant. The stubble also affords considerable protection and hence winter-killing is less likely to occur.

Where the Luck Came In

Little Billy tripped over the edge of the carpet and dropped the dish of tapoca he was carrying. Picking himself up, he remarked, cheerfully, "That's lucky!" His mother was indignant. "What's lucky, I should like to know?" she asked. "Why, it's lucky I don't like tapoca," replied Billy.

An Unflattering Light

William Jennings Bryan, a few days before his death in Dayton, said to a correspondent: "So you think that all this limelight is doing me good, eh? Well, a lot of it makes me feel like the doctor." "Oh, George," said the doctor's wife, "and so you've actually saved old Mr. Million?" "Yes," said the doctor. "I'm happy to say old Million is now out of danger." "Oh, George," she said, "what a marvelous doctor you are! Oh, if I had only known you seven years ago. I'm sure that under your skillful treatment my poor first husband, Harry Mc-Masters, would have been alive today."

City Ways

"Patriotism is a good thing, but it should never make a patriot stand up for his country when she is in the wrong." The speaker was Oswald Garrison Villard, the New York editor. "Such patriotism," he went on, "smacks too much of a certain milkman." "Look here, milkman," a lady said. "I don't like your milk." "Oh, you don't, don't you?" said the milkman. "What's the matter with it?" "It's thin and blue, and it never has any cream." "You're from the country, ain't you?" "Yes, I am." "The milkman gave a sneering laugh. "Thought so," he said. "Well, after you've lived in the city a while you'll get over them jay-hawk notions of yours."

British Thrift

The latest figures on savings show that two-thirds of the people of Great Britain maintain savings accounts in some form. More than 15,000,000 people have amassed $3,766,200,000 in savings and savings certificates. Savings bank deposits have increased 100 per cent in less than a generation. Despite war losses since 1914 the national capital of Great Britain is now estimated in excess of $92,000,000,000. Figures from co-operative societies show a membership of more than 53,000,000. One writer on the subject says that "British thrift explains British policy, tolerance and love of order."—Thrift Magazine.

"MA" FERGUSON

Austin, Texas, Nov. 28.—Before the flare of rockets in the Texas highway imbroglio died out and while the question of a special session of the legislature for probably impeachment proceedings was still pending in connection with alleged irregularities, the state's woman governor, Miriam A. Ferguson, sent up another rocket today, aimed at wealthy liquor law violators. The executive offered a reward of $500 for each conviction of liquor law violators who are worth $5,000 or more.

It was another broadside of a salvo initiated by Governor Ferguson, Friday night, when she charged through her husband, James E. Ferguson, that the rumblings growing out of the highway investigation and other attacks made on her administration came from disgruntled politicians and road contractors.

In her statement on liquor law enforcement, today, Mrs. Ferguson charges "our Methodist friends" to help her convict wealthy violators of the prohibition law.

Declaring that she is tired of the criticism directed at her pardon policy and the charges that she is too lenient with liquor law violators, she said she issued the proclamation and called upon "our Methodist friends," who seem to be so much exercised about the pardon power to get busy and help us detect and convict a few of the highbrows."

The governor's thrust at the Methodists is a counter attack, as several Methodist conferences in Texas have passed resolutions criticising her pardoning so many persons convicted of liquor law violations.

SIX BREATHS EVERY MINUTE NOT FIFTEEN

Doing This Job Well is The Cheapest Form of Good Health Insurance.

How many breaths do you take in a minute? Fifteen or twenty? If you do, you are taking short breaths, from the top of the lungs, and so ignoring the cheapest form of health insurance.

Several times a day, health specialists at the Ohio State university suggest, stop what you are doing and concentrate on deep breathing. Stand straight, head up and shoulders back, and breathe deeply, perhaps like this: Inhale, one, two, three, four; hold, five; exhale, six, seven, eight, nine; relax, ten.

That will give you about six breaths a minute. Your breathing, following that count, must be slow, regular and deep. Deep breathing exercises each night and morning will eventually lead to deeper breathing thruout the day.

Most people pay little attention to the way they breathe, the university specialists point out, yet no operation is more vital. Deep breathing means an ample supply of oxygen, and an ample supply of oxygen means bodily growth and tissue repair and warfare against disease.

Fresh air is cheap; use all you can.

CONFESSION BELIEVED TO BE SPURIOUS

Robert August Claims That He Killed Two Victims and Buried Them.

Toledo, O., Nov. 30, (UP).--Despite his confession that he "killed two victims and buried them," Robert August religious fanatic and recluse arrested in connection with the activities of the Toledo club welder, had nothing to do with the clubber's crimes, police said they believed.

August who was captured in a culvert near Holland, Ohio, and was carrying a blood stained hammer at the time, will probably be released or committed to some institution, officials said. Meanwhile, two other suspects have been taken into custody and were taken before the sanity commission.

Miss Wilma Hoadley, one of the clubber's victims, viewed August and the suspects failed to identify any of them as the "monster of the night."

August has the mind of a boy, according to alienists who examined him. Other victims admitted that "something about August was familiar" but in no instance was identification positive or a nature sufficient to warrant serious charges.

August has been living the life of a recluse in a woodland near Holland, according to the authorities.

TWENTY COWS AND ONE PONY IN HOLOCAUST

Sacrificed to Moloch, Early Morning Fire--Renick Dunlaps Farm, Loss $8,000.

The large stock barn of Renick Dunlap, located in Pickaway township, burned to the ground early Tuesday morning.

The structure was one of the largest in the county. Nearly everything in the barn consisting of twenty head of dairy cows, one pony and all the farm tools and implements and nearly fifty tons of hay and straw and seed corn was destroyed by the fire.

The farm is occupied by John Chester, a tenant, who had a half interest in the stock and farm implements.

The fire department of this city was called on for assistance at 1:35 o'clock Tuesday morning, but owing to lack of water on the farm little assistance could be given and it was useless for the department to respond.

The barn was 100 by 60 feet and the loss is estimated at $8,000.

ONCE OVERS

Why Does a Second Wife Have Luxuries and Privileges That a Man's First Love Was Denied?

How often it happens that the first wife spends her entire married life in helping a man to get on in the world and then another woman gets the fruits of her life's work.

And isn't it strange that a man will do for his second wife a lot of things which his first wife wanted and could not get?

His better appearance in the world has given him a more prosperous appearance, and Mrs. Second Wife does not understand that it was a struggle to get the position he seems to have attained.

Naturally, she expects everything to correspond with surroundings.

It all looks easy to her, but the man must keep his nose to the grindstone and he deserves what he gets.

If Mr. Wedded Widower had appreciated his first companion and shown it by his words and acts, he might yet be the real head of his household and in comfortable circumstances.

As it is, he sports a new car, joins expensive clubs and kicks himself when the bills come in.—Copyright, 1925.

KEEP YORKTON LIBERTY SHRINE

Washington.—To restore and preserve the battlefield of Yorktown, where Cornwallis surrendered to Washington, as an international shrine of liberty is the purpose of a movement directed by three Yorktown organizations, the Historical society, the Forum and the Country club.

The movement has received the support of notables, including President Coolidge and his royal highness the duke of York, the latter having accepted the honorary presidency of the Yorktown forum. Included in the list are cabinet members, senators, representatives, Vice President Dawes, General Pershing and other high military officials, governors, ambassadors and other diplomats, Stanley Baldwin, the prime minister of England; Field Marshal Haig, Sir Auckland Geddes, Sir Esme Howard, Lady Nancy Astor, Lord Bing of Vinny, the marshals of France and the descendants of Lafayette, Rochambeau and DeGrasse, who served at Yorktown with Washington.

Yorktown possesses a vital interest to Americans. General Pershing, in a foreword to a book, "The Glory of Yorktown," which is being circulated by the promoters, says that the fundamental proposition of the sovereignty of the people was made secure by the American revolution, and the struggle for national freedom, won at Yorktown, inaugurated a universal movement for national independence which spread over the western hemisphere and resulted in the establishment of twenty independent states in Latin America.

"This epochal movement," says General Pershing, "later spread to Europe and even to Asia, terminating the age-long struggle between democracy and autocracy, and bringing a new concept of popular government to the old nations of the world. Yorktown was one of the decisive battles of the world, and marked a turning in human history, the effects of which have become worldwide."

Dates Back Three Centuries.

Yorktown was patented in 1621 and the town of York was laid out in 1691. It is situated in the historic peninsula of Virginia. Near by is Jamestown, where the first English settlement on the western hemisphere was made, in 1607, and not far distant is the site of the famous Indian village of Powhatan. Close at hand, too, is Williamsburg, seat of William and Mary college, which was founded in 1693, and but a few miles away are Fortress Monroe, guarding the entrance to Chesapeake bay, and Newport News, Hampton and Norfolk. Within a short radius are the birthplaces of seven presidents of the United States—Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Harrison, Tyler and Wilson.

Every school child knows of the important place Yorktown and its siege occupy in the history of the Revolutionary war, but not all know the spot that marked events in three other wars. There was important military action there during the war of 1812, when the British captured Yorktown on their way to Washington; during the Civil war the Confederates under General Magruder and General Johnson occupied the old Cornwallis fortifications when the Union under McClellan marched up the peninsula to attack them, and during the recent World war Yorktown was an American naval base.

The Yorktown Historical society has established headquarters in Yorktown to receive visitors, distribute explanatory literature and deliver lectures on the battlefield and the historic facts.

World Assembly Proposed.

It is planned to expand the Yorktown forum into a world assembly and international center comparable with The Hague, Brussels and Geneva. A classical temple is to be erected to house the forum and there will be closely connected units interpreting in symbol historical eras and epochs in the development of democracy. A perpetual endowment is to be provided.

The forum is affiliated with the Marshall-Wythe-Monroe school of government, citizenship and international relations of the College of William and Mary, and until the forum buildings are completed its sessions will be held either in the customs house at Yorktown, the oldest customs house in the United States, or in the National Memorial auditorium on the college campus.

The function of the Country club is to maintain the battlefield of Yorktown and to provide housing accommodations and recreational facilities for visitors. A temporary clubhouse has been erected and an 18-hole golf course completed. In constructing the golf course, the underbrush that concealed the redoubts, entrenchments and parallels of the famous battlefield has been cleared away and it is possible for visitors to inspect them for the first time since shortly after the Revolutionary period.

History of the Battle.

Yorktown, for all its military importance, by the way, was not a bloody battle ground, the allied American and French losses being only about 300 killed, wounded and missing, and the British losses about 550. Washington, when he took over the command from Lafayette, had a force far superior to that of Lord Cornwallis. He had approximately 9,000 Americans; there were 7,000 French under Rochambeau, and in addition, there was the French fleet of Count de Grasse, numbering 28 ships of the line with nearly 4,000 infantry on board. The siege was opened on October 9 and eight days later Cornwallis proposed to surrender.

October 19 Major General O'Hara led out the whole British army from the trenches into the open field, where, in the presence of allied ranks of France and America, 7,247 English and Hessian soldiers laid down their arms, delivered their standards and became prisoners of war.

The second siege of Yorktown, during the Civil war, likewise found McClellan in command of the Union army with a greatly superior force numbering 112,392 men as compared with not to exceed 50,000 Confederates. McClellan delayed his assault, however, and the Confederates evacuated Yorktown and fell back to Williamsburg on the way to Richmond.

3 Lines Tell of Heroic Rescue of 22 at Sea

New Orleans.—Capt. Robert Laird of the Honduran steamship Atlantida, is a man of few words.

In logging the rescue of a crew from an American vessel in distress, Captain Laird noted the incident thus:

"Much lightning, 8 a. m. Sighted Timpson in distress, 2 p. m. Rescued. Crude oil to quiet waves."

Captain Laird sailed from his New Orleans home wearing a watch bearing the inscription: "From the President of the United States to Robert Laird, master of the Honduran steamship, Atlantida, in recognition of his humane service in effecting the rescue at sea on October 18, 1924, of the master and crew of the American motorship, James Timpson."

John R. Kennedy, second officer and Lionel Buckley, wireless operator, were presented with binoculars, and medals will be presented to three members of the crew who manned the small boat, with Kennedy and Buckley, in which 22 members of the crew of the Timpson were transported through hurricane seas from their crippled ship to the Atlantida.

Heat with Distinction

At last it is proved that a home heater can be good looking—ornamental, if you will—as well as a practical heat-producing utility.

The Mueller Furnacette marks the greatest advance in home heating equipment since the invention of the heating stove. It is the joint creation of master furniture designers and skilled heating engineers. There is distinction in every line of its well-balanced, walnut-grained, vitreous enamel cabinet.

And as for heat—never was there an above-floor heater of any kind that could compare with the Furnacette in heating efficiency! It heats the whole house by continuously re-circulating warm, moist air thru all the rooms. It provides more comfortable, more uniform heat than two or three stoves combined, yet uses no more fuel than an ordinary heating stove.

BUSINESS EQUILIBRIUM

Charles E. Mitchell, president of the biggest bank in America, evidently feels like making the same prayer for American business.

He rejoices in the fact that business is now enjoying sound prosperity, with neither boom nor slump threatened. He cannot find any sign of dangerous inflation. Business and credit conditions, he says, are both sound.

"This is the time, however, for everyone to watch his inventory lest it become too large and disturb the present perfect equilibrium of business."

That is worth quoting if only for its neat phrase, "perfect equilibrium of business," which is the ideal of the level-headed business man.

"We do not want business to reach the boom state," says Mr. Mitchell. "That sort of business is always short-lived. What we want is to try to keep business and credit on a conservative basis, with demand just a little ahead of production."

This is the existing situation, and also the prospect for the immediate future. It ought to be enough to satisfy any rational person.

Results Are Always Nil.

The Next Best Thing

Little Willie came home from school the other day with a black eye. "Willie, where did you get that black eye?" asked mother. "Johnny Smith hit me," answered Willie.

"Well, ma, I didn't have any coals, so I just stuck his head in the ash barrel."

Horse Saved Mate's Life

Comote, a three-year-old thoroughbred mare on the Bakersfield (Cal.) ranch, is credited with saving the life of her mate, Katie. Comote pranced into the ranch yard visibly excited. By various means the mare induced a man to follow her to a deep stream where Katie was struggling desperately to keep her head above the swirling water. A stake rope held her captive. The rescue was effected just in time to save her life.

Lancaster, Nov. 29.—Harry Kelley, 54, of 48 Meek Ave., Columbus, brickmason, died Saturday at the Lancaster hospital where he was taken Thursday after an accident on the Lancaster-Logan road. Kelley's skull was crushed when the car in which he was riding turned over while an attempt was being made to pass another auto and a farm wagon. He was enroute to the home of relatives living near Enterprise where he was to partake of a family Thanksgiving dinner. Surviving are the widow, three sons, Harold, Charles and John, all of Columbus, and one daughter also of that city.

Dividend Declared.

In the case of The Circleville Savings & Banking Co., plaintiff vs. L. M. Hosler and Ella N. Hosler, defendants, a dividend of 33.83 per cent was declared of the proceeds from the sale of personal property in the hands of Sheriff Young.

Vermont should advertise the fact that a man in that state is entitled by law to his wife's earnings, and then get ready for an influx of new settlers.

SOCIAL AFFAIRS

The younger set home from school for the Thanksgiving recess made merry Friday evening at the Phi Sigma Chi dance given at the Winter Garden. Eighty-five couples were present and enjoyed the wonderful music by Ken Middaugh's Castle Farm Orchestra of ten pieces.

During the evening a large turkey was given away and the winner was Miss Marion McVicker.

It was with real regret that the dancers heard the strains of "Home, Sweet Home" at one o'clock, the signal that the dance was over.

A number of out of town guests attended the affair including many from Circleville, Wellston, Jackson and Washington C. H.—Chillicothe News-Advertiser.

Airy Attic Room Is Fine to Cure Corn

Plan of Stringing Ears Is Familiar to Many.

With the recent frost catching much of the corn full of moisture, the method of curing seed corn this fall will determine to a large extent the success or failure of the stand next year.

"Seed corn," declares A. N. Hume, of South Dakota State college, "should be stored in a dry place with good air circulation, neither too hot nor too cold. An airy attic room will serve to store enough for home use, although it has the objection that it may bring mice into the house. The seed ears may be covered with dry threshed oats in a bin and allowed to remain there until spring.

"Most corn growers are familiar with the plan of stringing the ears and hanging them outdoors on the sunny side of a building or tying two or more ears together by the husks and hanging them that way. Such methods of curing are usually successful, unless the sunshine becomes too hot and causes germination of the corn. The strings of seed ears may be suspended from the rafters of a crib or even a garage, but do not drain the radiator of the car or allow steam to escape below the corn in freezing weather. Many bushels of good seed corn have been ruined in this manner.

"If corn is once well cured, it will be almost certain to retain its germination. Sometime after Christmas when it is thoroughly cured. It may be shelled, graded, and stored in sacks ready for planting."

Mature ears make the best seed corn although corn that has reached the glazed stage can be used if properly cured and stored. Seed for next year should be secured this fall.

Hogging Off Corn Saves Farmer Time and Labor

Farmers who hogged off a portion of their corn crop and husked the remainder on the stalk, made more money on corn in the past five years than those who cut, shucked, and husked it all, according to the experiences on Ohio farms where records were kept.

The figures for this survey were recorded by the farmers themselves, and F. L. Morison, of Ohio State University, who compiled the figures, says that by proper planning these men who let the hogs do part of the work greatly reduced labor costs.

"Based on the figures secured in Greene county from 1920 to 1925," writes Mr. Morison, "a farmer who has 40 acres of corn will spend 143 days of man labor in raising and harvesting his corn crop if he cuts, shocks and husks it. If five acres are 'hogged off' the 40-acre corn crop will take 131 days of man labor. Hogging off not only saves labor in harvesting the corn, but also saves time in caring for the hogs.

"If this farmer with 40 acres of corn hogs off 30 acres and husks the remainder off the stalk, it will require only 78 days of man labor to raise and harvest his corn crop, or 65 days less than if he were to cut, shock and husk it all. At the high wages paid for this extra harvesting labor, the saving in man labor would amount to more than twice the value of the stover left standing in the field."

Green Feed Helps Hens

During the late fall and early spring the addition of green food to the rations of the hens will well repay the efforts of the poultry keeper. This can be supplied in many ways. Green cut alfalfa, corn fodder, lawn clippings or clover are excellent green foods. If these are not available, roots, such as mangels or turnips, are very acceptable. Many good poultry keepers feed both. This, of course, is in addition to the regular grain rations. By using a little thought during the growing season enough of this material can be cured for winter consumption.

Culling Is Profitable

That it does not pay to keep poultry—has been demonstrated to at least one West Virginia poultry raiser and his neighbors. Last fall he followed the advice of the poultry extension specialists and culled his flock. From a flock of 81 hens he culled out 39 and sent them to the market. To his surprise, the remaining 42 birds produced as many eggs as the original flock and his feed bill, consequently, was nearly halved.

FARM NOTES

Some cows live on profits.

Deep cultivation of cabbage cuts too many roots.

Noxious weeds, like diseases, should be eradicated.

Where soil fertility is a problem the absence of a legume in the rotation hastens the date of the sheriff's sale.

An egg is only a dividend declared after the body needs have been supplied, and nature looks out for Number One first—to get lots of eggs, cull out the drones and feed to the limit those that deserve it.

Women's Rights in Siberia

After 13 years of obedient married life with a well-to-do peasant of Cherkonov Nikovo, Mrs. Doria Kuboreva, absorbed the Soviet doctrine of woman's rights and began taking part in village politics. Her husband's beatings failed to discourage her and she was elected a member of the village Soviet. When she warned her husband that he must pay his taxes, he stabbed her with a knife. "The proletariat court will punish with great severity," adds the Siberian correspondent, who reported the incident. Kuboreva cannot be given more than ten years' imprisonment, as a single murder without robbery is not a capital crime in Russia.

Too Much Talk

Charles M. Schwab, at a banquet in Loreto, was cornered by a young man of great loquacity. This young man evidently believed that his chance in life was now come, and he talked away at Mr. Schwab for more than half an hour. At last he said meaningly:

"You are a good judge of character, Mr. Schwab. What quality do I most need in order to succeed?"

"Well, young man," the steel magnate answered, "I've listened to you for some time now, and it seems to me that you need what is on that door over there."

"Ha, ha, ha! Push, eh? Pull, eh? Ha, ha, ha! Very clever! Push and pull! Is that what you think I need, Mr. Schwab?"

"No," said Mr. Schwab; "I think you need a device to make you shut up."

Good Home Brew

In these days of prohibition it is always nice to have a recipe on hand for making a home drink with a kick. One of our Peoria (Ill.) readers sent us a recipe for a home brew which, although it has a strong kick, comes within the law. The recipe is as follows: Chase a frog three miles and gather up its hops, to the hops add ten gallons of tan bark, half a gallon of shellac and a large bucket of soft homemade soap. Boil this mixture 40 hours, then strain through an I. W. W. proclamation to keep it working. Finally, bottle in pint bottles and add a grasshopper to each pint to give it a kick.—Pathfinder Magazine.

AMUSEMENTS

Marion Davies' latest Cosmopolitan production, "Yolanda," had its first showing at the Metropolitan theater and it stands out as one of the finest most artistic productions of the entire year. It is beautiful in its settings, skillful in its direction and excellent in the acting.

The entire production is full of the glamour of fifteenth century France. The sets devised by Joseph Urban are marvels of beauty and are historically accurate. The story was adapted by Luther Reed from Charles Major's novel, "Yolanda," and was directed by Robert G. Vignola, who directed Miss Davies' first big smashing film hit, "When Knighthood Was in Flower."

"Yolanda" gives Miss Davies a latitude of characterization even greater than that which she had in "Little Old New York." In both pictures she is called upon to delineate two characters that are quite different. In "Yolanda" Miss Davies appears as Princess Mary of Burgundy and as Yolanda, a burgher maid. She gives a finished performance in both characterizations, proving anew that she is one of the ablest and most charming of our screen actresses.

The cast is a notable one, both in the names of its players and in the excellence of their acting. Holbrook Blinn presents a fascinating portrait of the wily King Louis XI of France, a sinister figure on the verge of insanity. Lyn Harding, whose vigorous and sure handling of the part of Charles and Bold, duke of Burkundy, attests his mastery of screen technique, gives an even more commanding interpretation than he did in "When Knighthood Was in Flower." Other important roles are played by Ralph Graves, as handsome and resourceful Prince Maximilian of Styria, whose love affair with Yolanda gives romantic interest to the story, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Ian Mavlar, Johnny Dooley, Leon Errol, Maclyn Arbuckle, Theresa, Maxwell Conover, Mary Kennedy, Thomas Findlay and others.

Vast Supply of Potash

A thousand years' supply of potash for the American farmer, making us independent of supplies from Chile and other foreign countries, is possible as a result of a discovery of a new process for making potassium sulphate from greensand. OLD ENGLISH LAW BASED ON BIBLE

"Benefit of clergy" was a privilege once enjoyed by the clergy of England, whereby they were exempted from civil punishment. The origin of this exemption is unknown, but the custom was probably based on the text: "Teach not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm." (I Chron. 16:22; Ps. 105:15) Edward I in 1274 extended this privilege to all laymen that could read. Such a criminal could not be put to death, but was to be branded on the left hand. The first verse of Psalm 50, was chosen as the reading test, and hence was known as the "neck verse." In 1691, this privilege was extended to women. The privilege eventually became a dead letter; it was variously restricted and finally in 1827 in the reign of George IV, it was abolished altogether.—Kansas City Star.

Hunter's Odd Bedfellow

Henry D. Ross, on a camping trip with his son in the woods north of Clifton, Ariz., had a bear for a bed-fellow one night, and this after failure to find bears in several days of hunting. He sleepily resented the invasion of his blankets and pushed the intruder away. His explanation of the affair is that it was only a poor little cub, seeking companionship and warmth, and that he is too much of a sportsman to shoot a cub.

Horse's Remarkable Feat

During a recent running race in Australia, Roseben, a famous turf horse, easily carried a rider weighing 210 pounds and won his race, much to the astonishment of race track followers. It is the first time this animal had ever won a race carrying more than 147 pounds of rider. The race was for five furlongs and the weight was considered staggering by most horsemen.

SPOILED EFFECT OF DOCTOR'S SMART IDEA

Frank Irving Fletcher, the advertising expert, said in an address in New York:

"Advertise, but advertise in the right way."

"At an important political meeting the other night the chairman had just introduced a famous orator, and the orator had just got up full steam, when an attendant tiptoed from the wings and whispered something in his ear."

"Friends, excuse me," said the orator, "but is Doctor Pillsbury in the house?"

"A pompous-looking man in a front seat rose."

"Doctor Pillsbury, you're wanted on the telephone."

"In a deep and impressive silence the doctor pushed past a dozen pairs of legs, and then as he went tiptoeing down the aisle the orator said from the stage:

"I have a doctor brother, friends, and he, too, used to advertise in this way when he was starting out."

Uncle Sam Breeds Bugs

In a strange nursery on the banks of the Potomac the United States government keeps a host of fleas, mosquitoes, mites and flies. When fully grown, they serve to test poisons that are sold throughout the country for extermination of insects, says Popular Science Monthly. Among the most valued assistants on the bug farm are four dogs, two cats and 125 chickens, which produce bumper crops of fleas and mites for the tests.

Outdoor Storage Cellars Favored

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Outdoor cellars may be used to advantage for the storage of surplus vegetable crops that otherwise might be lost, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. Such cellars are on the whole superior to storage rooms in basements of dwellings. Vegetables can more conveniently be placed in such cellars than in basement storage rooms. By opening the door during the night and closing it in the morning before the air becomes warm, it is possible to keep the cellar cool and quickly reduce the temperature of the stored products to the desired point for safe storage. All ventilators should likewise be kept tightly closed until the outside air is again cooler than that within the cellar, unless the outside temperature is low enough to be dangerous.

Best Location.

If the outdoor storage cellar is to be used principally for storing crops such as turnips, beets, and carrots for feeding livestock, it should be located near the stable. When it is designed for keeping vegetables for the table, the storage cellar should be accessible from the kitchen at all times. If both fruit and vegetables are to be stored, there should be two compartments to the cellar, with a ventilating apparatus in each.

The type of the outdoor storage cellar varies with geographical location. Except in sections where the climate is very mild, the storage cellar should be constructed so that it can be kept free from undue moisture and frost. In northern sections outdoor storage cellars are made almost entirely below ground and covered with a foot or two of earth. In winter the dirt covering may be supplemented by a layer of manure, straw, corn fodder or similar material.

A storage house adapted to conditions in southern sections of the United States may be constructed on a well-drained site by setting a row of posts five or six feet apart, extending seven or eight feet above the surface of the ground, with a ridgepole placed on top of them. Against each side of the ridgepole a row of planks or puncheons is placed, with their opposite ends resting in a shallow trench four or five feet from the line of posts. The ends are boarded up, a door being provided in one end of the structure, and the roof covered with soil to a depth of five or six inches. The floors of outdoor storage houses are usually dirt.

Storage House in North.

An above-ground type of storage house used in many sections of the North is a frame structure with walls ten to twelve inches thick filled with insulating material, such as sawdust or hayings. Both inside and outside walls are sheathed with matched lumber or as to make them air tight. The rafters are ceiled on the underside with the same material and the space between them filled with dry insulating substance. The use of building paper in the roof and walls of the storage house is of great value in insulating the structure. An air duct or pipe of sufficient size should be used to bring air from the outside. This duct should be placed just beneath the level of the floor, running from a point just outside the building to an inlet in the floor. The outside end of the duct should be covered with woven wire to prevent the entrance of small animals. A ventilating flue in the roof is necessary for the escape of warm air. Both ventilator and air inlet should be closed during very cold weather. If the storage room is longer than 12 feet, an additional ventilator will be needed. Unless the vegetables are placed in receptacles and set on shelves on the walls of the storage house, a slat floor on which to put the stored products should be used to provide a better circulation of air.

Extra Feeding AssistsYoung Growing Animals

It is always advisable to feed young lambs or any kind of young stock—pigs, calves or chickens—extra. If you would build a lamb run, that is, make a pen large enough to accommodate the lambs so that they could get in and out and sheep could not, you could feed the lambs extra in this run. Feed them ground oats and corn meal, and ensilage also; in fact, anything they care to eat. It might be well to let them eat ensilage with old sheep, also hay, but grain should be fed alone so the old sheep could not get to it. It is possible by this extra feeding and care to make a big growth on lambs. A farmer could get them to market much earlier. Extra feeding put into young growing animals is never wasted if fed with care.

Nurse Crop for Clover

Tests at the Brandon experimental farm emphasize the fact that sweet clover is much more economically produced when sown with a nurse crop than when sown alone. The yields of the various nurse crops are in no way due to the presence of the sweet clover and the slightly increased yield the following season in favor of seedling alone is insignificant. The stubble also affords considerable protection and hence winter-killing is less likely to occur.

Where the Luck Came In

Little Billy tripped over the edge of the carpet and dropped the dish of taploca he was carrying. Picking himself up, he remarked, cheerfully, "That's lucky!" His mother was indignant. "What's lucky, I should like to know?" she asked. "Why, it's lucky I don't like taploca," replied Billy.

An Unflattering Light

William Jennings Bryan, a few days before his death in Dayton, said to a correspondent: "So you think that all this limelight is doing me good, eh? Well, a lot of it makes me feel like the doctor." "Oh, George," said the doctor's wife, "and so you've actually saved old Mr. Million!" "Yes," said the doctor. "I'm happy to say old Million is now out of danger." "Oh, George," she said, "what a marvelous doctor you are! Oh, if I had only known you seven years ago. I'm sure that under your skillful treatment my poor first husband, Harry McMaster, would have been alive today."

City Ways

"Patriotism is a good thing, but it should never make a patriot stand up for his country when she is in the wrong." The speaker was Oswald Garrison Villard, the New York editor. "Such patriotism," he went on, "smacks too much of a certain milkman." "Look here, milkman," a lady said. "I don't like your milk." "Oh, you don't, don't you?" said the milkman. "What's the matter with it?" "It's thin and blue, and it never has any cream." "You're from the country, ain't you?" "Yes, I am." "The milkman gave a sneering laugh. "Thought so," he said. "Well, after you've lived in the city a while you'll get over them jay-hawk notions of yours."

British Thrift

The latest figures on savings show that two-thirds of the people of Great Britain maintain savings accounts in some form. More than 15,000,000 people have amassed $3,766,200,000 in savings and savings certificates. Savings bank deposits have increased 100 per cent in less than a generation. Despite war losses since 1914 the national capital of Great Britain is now estimated in excess of $92,000,000,000. Figures from co-operative societies show a membership of more than 53,000,000. One writer on the subject says that "British thrift explains British policy, tolerance and love of order."—Thrift Magazine.

"MA" FERGUSON

Austin, Texas, Nov. 28.—Before the flare of rockets in the Texas highway imbroglio died out and while the question of a special session of the legislature for probably impeachment proceedings was still pending in connection with alleged irregularities, the state's woman governor, Miriam A. Ferguson, sent up another rocket today, aimed at wealthy liquor law violators. The executive offered a reward of $500 for each conviction of liquor law violators who are worth $5,000 or more.

It was another broadside of a salvo initiated by Governor Ferguson, Friday night, when she charged through her husband, James E. Ferguson, that the rumblings growing out of the highway investigation and other attacks made on her administration came from disgruntled politicians and road contractors.

In her statement on liquor law enforcement, today, Mrs. Ferguson charges "our Methodist friends" to help her convict wealthy violators of the prohibition law.

Declaring that she is tired of the criticism directed at her pardon policy and the charges that she is too lenient with liquor law violators, she said she issued the proclamation and called upon "our Methodist friends," who seem to be so much exercised about the pardon power to get busy and help us detect and convict a few of the highbrows."

The governor's thrust at the Methodists is a counter attack, as several Methodist conferences in Texas have passed resolutions criticising her pardoning so many persons convicted of liquor law violations.

ESSAY CON-

Milar, chairman of the national resources committee of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, announced today. The club is sponsoring the contest with Congressman Martin L. Davey. The winner receives a scholarship worth $4,000 in any Ohio college.

WHY MOTHERS PREFER THIS NEW TASTELESS EPSOM SALTS PILL.

Mother knows that none of the new kinds of laxatives and physics are as satisfactory as the old reliable Epsom Salts. But children and adults alike have avoided this wonderful old remedy because of its disagreeable taste. Now, at last, specialists have discovered the way to get the benefits of Epsom Salts in a small sugar-coated pill. By this new discovery, one of Kuhn's Epsom Pills, as they are called, is equal in results to a full tablespoon of old style Epsom Salts. Pleasant to take. Quick results. Try a package today—or only 25 cents. Money back if not completely satisfied. At the following druggists: G. H. Fickardt & Son, Geo. F. Grand-Girard, Mykrantz Drug Co., and Joseph G. Wilder.

SIX BREATHS EVERY MINUTE NOT FIFTEEN

How many breaths do you take in a minute? Fifteen or twenty? If you do, you are taking short breaths, from the top of the lungs, and so ignoring the cheapest form of health insurance.

Several times a day, health specialists at the Ohio State university suggest, stop what you are doing and concentrate on deep breathing. Stand straight, head up and shoulders back, and breathe deeply, perhaps like this: Inhale, one, two, three, four; hold, five; exhale, six, seven, eight, nine; relax, ten.

That will give you about six breaths a minute. Your breathing, following that count, must be slow, regular and deep. Deep breathing exercises each night and morning will eventually lead to deeper breathing thruout the day.

Most people pay little attention to the way they breathe, the university specialists point out, yet no operation is more vital. Deep breathing means an ample supply of oxygen, and an ample supply of oxygen means bodily growth and tissue repair and warfare against disease.

Fresh air is cheap; use all you can.
